

'Rules' Dangerous but Unity Vital

"Language of the Heart" (pages 6-9)

Does Alcoholics Anonymous have a public relations policy? Is it adequate to meet our present and future needs?

Though it has never been definitely formulated or precisely stated, we certainly have a partly formed public relations policy. Like everything else in AA, it has grown up out of trial and error. Nobody invented it. Nobody has ever laid down a set of rules or regulations to cover it, and I hope no one ever will. This is because rules and regulations seem to be little good for us. They seldom work well.

Were we to proceed by rules, somebody would have to make them and, more difficult still, somebody would have to enforce them. Rulemaking has often been tried. It usually results in controversy among the rule-makers as to what the rules should be. And when it comes to enforcing an edict—well, you all know the answer. When we try to enforce rules and regulations, however reasonable, we almost always get in so "dutch" that our authority disappears. A cry goes up: "Down with the dictators, off with their heads!" Hurt and astonished control committee after control committee, "leader" after "leader," makes the discovery that human authority, be it ever so impartial or benign, seldom works long or well in our affairs. Alcoholics (no matter if ragged) are yet the most rugged of individualists, true anarchists at heart.

Of course, nobody claims this trait of ours to be a sterling virtue. During his first AA years every AA has had plenty of the urge to revolt against authority. I know I did, and can't claim to be over it yet. I've also served my time as a maker of rules, a regulator of other people's conduct. I, too, have spent sleepless nights nursing my "wounded" ego, wondering how others whose lives I sought to manage could be so unreasonable, so thoughtless of "poor me." I can now look back upon such experiences with much amusement. And gratitude as well. They taught me that the very quality which prompted me to govern other people was the identical egocentricity which boiled up in my fellow AAs when they themselves refused to be governed!

A non-AA reader can be heard to exclaim: "This looks very serious for the future of these people. No organization, no rules, no authority? It's anarchy; it's dynamite; it's 'atomic' and bound to blow up. Public relations indeed! If there is no authority how can they have any public relations policy at all? That's the very defect which ruined the Washingtonian alcoholics a hundred years ago. They mushroomed to a hundred thousand members, then collapsed. No effective policy or authority. Quarreled among themselves, so finally got a black eye with the public. Aren't these AAs just the same kind of drunks, the same kind of anarchists? How can they expect to succeed where the Washingtonians failed?"

Good questions, these. Have we the answers? While we must never be too sure, there is reason to hope that we have, because forces seem to be at work in AA that were little evident among our fellow alcoholics of the 1840s.

For one thing, our AA program is spiritually centered. Most of us have found enough humility to believe in and depend upon God. We have found that humility by facing the fact that alcoholism is a fatal malady over which we are individually powerless. The Washingtonians, on the contrary, thought drinking to be just another strong habit which could be broken by willpower as expressed in pledges, plus the sustaining force of mutual aid through an understanding society of ex-drunks. Apparently they thought little of personality change, and nothing at all of spiritual conversion.

Mutual aid plus pledges did do a lot for them, but it wasn't enough; their individual egos still ran riot in every channel save alcohol. Self-serving forces having no real humility, having little appreciation that the penalty for too much self-will is death to the alcoholic, having no greater power to serve, finally destroyed the Washingtonians.

When, therefore, we AAs look to the future, we must always be asking ourselves if the spirit which now binds us together in our common cause will always be stronger than those personal ambitions and desires which tend to drive us apart. So long as the positive forces are greater we cannot fail. Happily, so far, the ties that bind us have been much stronger than those that might break us. Though the individual AA is under no human coercion, is at almost perfect personal liberty, we have, nevertheless, achieved a wonderful unity on vital essentials.

For example, the Twelve Steps of our AA program are not crammed down anybody's throat. They are not sustained by any human authority. Yet we powerfully unite around them because the truth they contain has saved our lives, has opened the door to a new world. Our experience tells us these universal truths work. The anarchy of the individual yields to their persuasion. He sobers up and is led, little by little, to complete agreement with our simple fundamentals.

Ultimately, these truths govern his life and he comes to live under their authority, the most powerful authority known, the authority of his full consent, willingly given. He is ruled, not by people, but by principles, by truths and, as most of us would say, by God.

Now some might ask, "What has all this got to do with an AA public relations policy?" An older AA would say, "Plenty." While experience shows that in AA no policy can be created and announced full-blown, much less effectively enforced by human authority, we are nevertheless faced with the problem of developing a public relations policy and securing for it the only authority we know—that of common understanding and widespread, if not universal, consent. When this consent is secured we can then be sure of ourselves. AA's will everywhere put the policy into effect as a matter of course, automatically. But we must at first be clear on certain basic principles. And these must have been well tried and tested in our crucible of experience.

In forthcoming articles I shall therefore try to trace the development of our public relations from the very first day we came to public notice. This will show what our experience has already taught us. Then every AA can have a real background for constructive thinking on this terribly vital matter—a matter on which we dare not make grave mistakes; upon which, over the years, we cannot afford to become unsound.

One qualification, however. A policy isn't quite like a fixed truth. A policy is something which can change to meet variable conditions, even though the basic underlying truths upon which it is founded do not change at all. Our policy might, for example, rest upon our Twelve Steps for its underlying truths, yet remain reasonably flexible so far as the means or method of its application is concerned.

Hence I earnestly hope thousands of AAs start thinking a great deal about these policy matters which are now becoming so important to us. It is out of our discussions, our differences of opinion, our daily experiences, and our general consent that the true answers must finally come.

As an older member I may be able to marshal the facts and help analyze what has happened so far. Perhaps I can even make some suggestions of value for the future. But that is all. Whether we are going to have a clear-cut workable public relations policy will finally be determined by all of us together—not by me alone!

Dan not present.

Mike – Meetings attended are Fri Night Recovery, Newcomers, Meat & Potatoes, Recovery Together, and Tyler Ave Group. Also attended the Dec Area Committee Meeting – Inventory. Thanks for letting me serve Michael R.

Shelley-Thank you for allowing me to be of service to District 1.

Since the November district meeting:

I reached to my assigned groups in Logan/Tremonton/Ogden via email. I let them know I'm in New York and asked if I could do anything to support them.

We had our monthly DCM meeting on December 4th. During the meeting Mike, Dan, Sue and I went over the meetings we wanted to attend in during the first quarter. We also talked about endorsing outside enterprises and moving the District One Monthly Business Meeting.

I wrote a report and Mike represented District One at the Area 69 December Committee Meeting.

There are 4 motions being discussed at the Area. The topics range from allocating money to a translator to creating a new Bridging the Gap Chairperson to altering the Area events. To know more, you can visit the Area 69 website:

<https://drive.google.com/drive/folders/11B2v0g6HqMee4iLCxHSbKQzZt2xYo3-g>. To make sure your group's voice is being heard, make sure to attend Area events.

Mike R. will report additional information from the event in his report.

I called GSO on the following meetings:

A Daily Reprieve (000045871) → Inactive

Box Elder Recovery (000096566) → Tremonton Group → I listed it as Inactive

Cache Valley Young Peoples → Registered, number is 000049796

Lady of the Mountain (000006485) → Not "Ladies" → Active

Monday Night Speakers (000118435) → Inactive

I talked to the President of the Brigham in late November.

She let me know that the Alano club is increasing our rent from $15.00 a month to $75.00 come January 9th, 2024. We currently have a verbal agreement with them (no written contract). I expressed that that was a steep increase and she let me know that Brigham Alano club is losing money every month.

She also let me know that they want to move the speaker meeting to Wednesday night. I explained that Tuesday night is when district meets, thus the speaker meeting, but she indicated that the time was too late to draw people to the meeting.

Lastly, the literature of the month is "Talk to A Doctor." This is an AREA 69 initiative to encourage AA members to talk to their doctor about Alcoholic Anonymous. I've attached the "packet" the email I sent out with the meeting reminder today.

Within it has scripts for the conversation, information cards, and pamphlet suggestions to bring.

I looked into PRASAA Registration: March 1-3rd in San Francisco, Registration: $40.00,

Hotel: $100.00/night, Transportation: Drive: $150-200 in gas, Fly: $130-150 round trip

If you want a DCM to attend your meeting this next month, please contact me after the meeting and we will get something set up.

For this next month, I will be:

Work with Mike R. on resolving where we will be holding our District Meeting in January
